Good morning,

The end of the year is always bittersweet. Everyone is a little sad that another year has gone by so quickly, but also excited with thoughts of having a fun filled summer. I always get emotional at the end of the year. It seems like yesterday we were having orientation and we were all excited to get to know each other and learn together. I wish I could slow down time a little bit. This class has been so sweet and kind to each other. They were always up for each challenge and worked hard to achieve the high expectations set for them. Thank you for sharing your children with me. I appreciate all the support to help make this a terrific year for our class.

Final Friday Folders will come home next week. We have wrapped up our poetry book and economics lessons. I will still be working next week trying to get some students to complete missing assignments
