ELA Station:

These lessons can be assigned within a station so that students can access with an iPad or computer. If you do not have 1:1 devices, you can put one device within the station and allow a group of students to watch. (This picture shows students watching on a TV that is synced to an iPad. One student is allowed to pause the iPad.

Self-Paced Assignments During 1:1 Testing:

When I have to do individual testing like DRA or TPRI, I like to assign a variety of activities to the rest of the class like video lessons, independent reading, quiet educational games, and other activities that can be done without my assistance. If you do not have 1:1 devices, simply have students share by handing off the device to another student once they are finished.

Homework:

Students can easily complete these lessons at home as long as they have internet.

Printing Options:

- Print all lessons for each student and put into a 3-ring binder so students can pull the page they need for the assigned lesson and then return it to binder after completion.
- Give the pages to students prior to each lesson and have them file into a designated folder after completion so they can review later.
- Print in booklet form and have students keep in a designated folder.
- Hole-punch and put in brad folder (be sure to keep the holes close to the edge so that the flap inside the folder won't interfere with writing).
