

Helpful Web Sites to Keep Your Child Engaged in Reading

It is very important to keep our Crocodiles reading each day so we put together some resources to provide support in this area. Great news! Your child can now log into AR Reading at home through their ClassLink login. While it is preferred that students read within their level to help them grow as a reader, we realize that they may have limited access to books at the moment. Because of this, students are now able to read books on any level and take an AR quiz. For example, if you have a 4th grade child and he/she reads a picture book to your 1st grade child, they may both take an AR quiz on the book.

Resources for Reading Materials:

Leon County Public Library - <https://leoncounty.overdrive.com/> The library has free books to download to electronic devices. Some books are on a waitlist, so a helpful hint to bypass scrolling through unavailable books is to click on the link that says available books to see what can be read instantly. If you want to check the AR level for your child, head on over to AR Book Finder at <https://www.arbookfind.com/UserType.aspx?RedirectURL=%2fdefault.aspx> If you wish, you can create a list of books for your child based upon his/her reading level and interests, and then use the list to search for books that are available at the Leon County Public Library.

- ❑ Tumble Books - This site has free online books - <https://www.tumblebooklibrary.com/home.aspx> If you are asked for a user name, use tumble735 and the password is books. When you click on the ebooks tab and click on specific books, it states the AR level for each one.
- ❑ Loving2Read - <https://loving2read.com/> This site has online stories primarily for younger children. Some of the stories offered are books to help with reading skills, math, and science.
- ❑ Scholastic Learn at Home - Scholastic has free stories, magazine articles, and video clips with learning activities by grade level.
