Peter Harris III, a Leon High School student, was an avid photographer, videographer, and young entrepreneur. He was a co-founder of The Nation Hoops, a marketing brand and website that featured highlight film of notable amateur basketball players.

Trey would often say that he created “digital art” from the photos and video images he captured. He loved filming, post production and the editing processes, adding creative dimension and music to his final work products.

His personal motto was “Be Great” - always encouraging us to give everything our best efforts.

If you are planning to attend college and study digital media, film production, photography, videography, graphic design or any of the creative arts, this scholarship is for you.
