

Name: _____

Contraction or Possessive Noun?

Contractions and possessive nouns are two types of words with apostrophes.

A contraction is a word that takes the place of two other words.

An apostrophe takes the place of missing letters.

example: Don't sit on that bench because the paint is wet.

Don't is a contraction for the words "do not."

A possessive noun shows that someone has or owns something.

An apostrophe and the letter s are added to show ownership.

example: That is Dan's car.

Dan owns the car, so the word Dan's is a possessive noun.

Read each sentence and circle the word with the apostrophe. Then, tell whether the circled word is a contraction or possessive noun.

1. I'll arrive later this afternoon. _____
2. Sarah's pencil tip is broken. _____
3. The dog's bowl is filled with water. _____
4. Haven't you read the book yet? _____
5. What's the matter? _____
6. The children's ball rolled away. _____
7. It's a lovely painting. _____
8. You'll have to pay for that. _____
9. Jim said he's been to China. _____
10. She's the fastest girl on the team. _____