READING FLUENCY

ECHO READ

You read a sentence (or phrase) and your child reads the same thing after you. This gives your child a model of how the sentence should be read by a fluent reader.

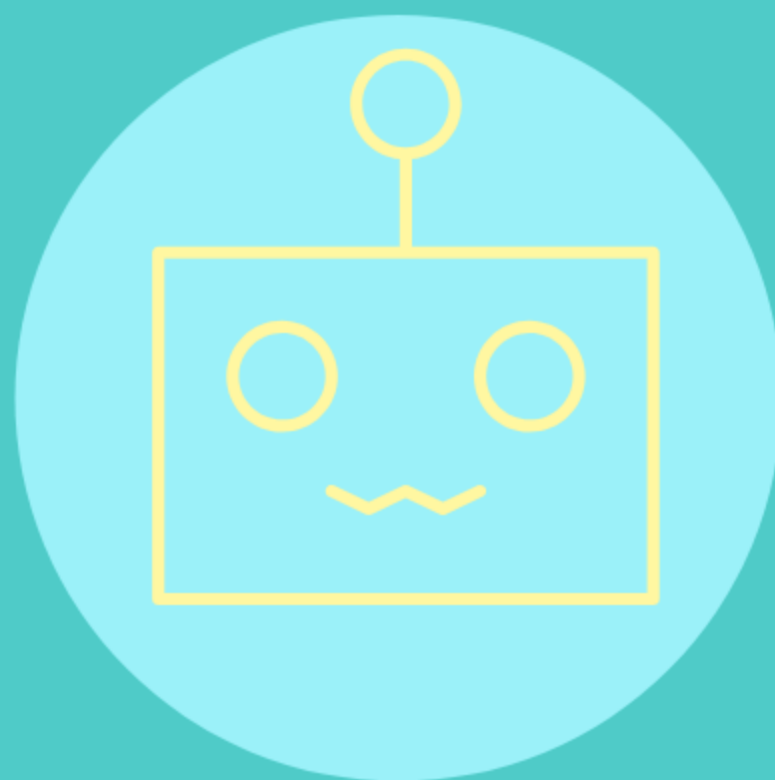

POETRY

Reading poetry aloud can make reading fun! It also promotes reading with inflection. Look for poems by fun children's authors like Shel Silverstein or Jack Prelutsky.

REPEATED READING

Although it may seem tedious, rereading the same text multiple times can help increase fluency. This is best done with shorter stories, poems, or other texts.

FUNNY VOICES

To make repeated reading more fun, have your child use a different silly voice for each reading! Example voices: robot, country, mouse, grumpy, deep, etc...

RECORD IT

Using a cellphone or tablet, record your child reading. Listening to yourself read is a great way to hear how much you are improving.

LISTEN

Listening to audio books, YouTube videos of books being read, or even family members reading can even help improve your child's fluency. Good models make good readers!
